

Ryan Bonavida

I am from Arvada, Colorado born and raised and graduated from Ralston Valley High School. I have always loved technology and all of its wonders. I cannot wait to be part of the next generation of technology. There is not really one experience that has prompted me to enter the technology field. I guess it was a combination of every experience that I have had with a computer or any type of technology.

I have chosen a Computer Engineering Major under Electrical Engineering.

I would love to be in the R & D department of some big company like Sony or Samsung developing the next Playstation or the next generation computer. That would be my dream career.
